(From the Calgary Herald.)

Since the Northwest Territories have had an organized government nothing has occurred so well calculated to startle the people as the recent declarations of a majority of members of the Legislature of their intention to practically disfranchise a number of Territorial constituencies. The most remarkable feature of this dangerous attack on the people's rights is that it proceeds from the men who have been clamoring the most loudly for responsible government! It is some compensation to the country that it learns from their own lips just what they mean by responsible government and just the kind of Legislature and Government they would give the Territories if they had the power. Their treatment of the representatives of the electors composing the Advisory Council discloses the real meaning of their movements; for we must be guided less by what they say than by what they do. In this instance their utterances and their acts are in harmony, and we may place these over against their professed desire to extend the powers of the people and sum up the result without difficulty or any chance of misunderstanding.

When Mr. Haultain, Mr. Casley and the majority say they have decided, outside of the Legislature, not to permit the representatives from Red Deer, Prince Albert, Regina and Weyburn to take any part in Legislation, that they intend to vote down any and every proposition emanating from these representatives without regard to its merits, that they will act out without discussion and by sheer strength of numbers and brute force every resolution, bill or request proceeding from them, no matter whether the proposed measure is for the benefit of the Territories or not, they are striking a blow at popular rights and electoral rights and at the system of responsible government such as has never before been struck in Canada. They show plainly the contempt in which they hold the rights of the electors. They reveal their ignorance of the first principles of popular government. They show that it is possible for men to have on their lips much to say of a desire to extend the people's rights while they are at the same moment capable of combining and plotting to strike down the rights of the electors without mercy and without shame. Professing a desire to extend the powers of the people's representatives in the Legislature they have actually disfranchised a number of constituencies altogether, refusing the people of those constituencies and their representatives in the Legislature the commonest political rights, of their own motion, without a semblance of justice or right, disqualifying their representatives on the floor of the House and treating the constituencies as if they had no representatives at all.

What these men are doing in regard to four constituencies they may do to many more; they may, if they please, disfranchise every constituency except those represented by themselves. They have as much right to expel all these representatives as to do what they are doing. They may constitute themselves a junta to silence every voice in the chamber except their own. There is nothing but public sentiment to stop them. If they can combine outside of the chamber to destroy the rights of a section of the representatives, they can form a ring to control legislation on every measure that comes before the Legislature, and indeed this is practically what they have done. They need not reason on the merits of measures which they do not introduce themselves; they can simply vote them down; they can and they do act as a machine. They have constituted themselves a party of punishment, not moved by any conscientious scruples, not swayed by the public interests, not amenable to reason or argument or protest from those from whom they differ, but determined to destroy the public's standing of those representatives who venture to hold opinions on political questions which do not square with their own and resolved to punish the electors who send such representatives to the Legislature. It should be clearly understood that the hand of the Ring is against the electors that their movement is one in deadly opposition to the rights of electors; that the punishment they are imposing falls less upon the men in the Legislature than upon the electors who sent them there; and that the Ring is acting as a combine to destroy these rights guaranteed to electors by the Parliament of Canada.

There cannot be a shadow of doubt that the result of this most detestable conspiracy against electoral rights will go far to lead the people of the Eastern Provinces to refuse longer powers to the Northwest Legislature, seeing the outrageous abuse of the powers already possessed by those who profess to represent the people but who are really the most deadly enemies of the people's rights that have yet appeared in the political arena.

MR. BETTS' SPEECH ON THE INSURANCE BILL.

It is a matter of regret, Mr. Speaker, to me as a private member of this House to hear such a principle enunciated as the one we have just heard from the Hon. member for McLeod (Haultain). The Hon. gentleman (second) who has asked leave to introduce this bill, a bill of vital importance to every district represented in this House, is simply exercising a right he is entitled to, and the tyrannical treatment which Mr. Haultain proposes to deal out to him will, I am certain, receive the strongest condemnation from the better sense of this House as well as from every public spirited man of the Territories. It is to be set up as a principle that because my district have seen fit to elect me to fill an important public position for the purpose of sustaining opinions satisfactory to them, but not in accord with a majority of this House, that my month is to be closed and that legislation in their interests and in the interests of the country is to be blocked and men occupying prominent positions in this House, representing important districts of the Territory, are to be parties to this deadlock!

Heard, Mr. Speaker, is to be the guiding principle of certain member here. It is well to know it, and I admire the nerve of the Hon. member for McLeod in not hesitating to stand up in his place in this House for the purpose of giving expression to the fact that such is the intention of himself and those members he finds so easy to lead. With every other Hon. gentleman here, Mr. Speaker, I regret our present position and all the circumstances it must entail; but, sir, I entered this Assembly on fair and distinct lines, on lines which I have never hesitated to announce to this House, and I propose howing to those lines regardless of the opinions which may be expressed or action taken by those opposed to them. The bill which my honorable friend now seeks to introduce and which the honorable gentleman (Haultain) asserts, even with all its merits, shall not be received or considered in any way by this Assembly, is a valuable one; valuable not alone to the people he represents but is of equal importance to any other district represented in this House. His connection with it or any other legislation is a question solely between himself and the people who returned him as a representative. If they object to his actions he will undoubtedly receive the proper treatment as their hands, but I protest against members of this House seeking to deny his people or the people of any other district their privileges in this House. It is a bill no honorable gentleman could possibly hesitate to introduce, and one which the interests of the Territory demands, and it should, at least, receive ordinary consideration. If found distasteful, opportunities, in the regular order, will present themselves and it can be thrown out, but Hon. gentlemen should hesitate before taking the action proposed by Mr. Haultain simply because the opinions held by the Hon. member for South Regina and his constituents in connection with one branch of our Territorial Government, does not agree with theirs or a majority of the Assembly. I repeat, Mr. Speaker, that such action as announced by Mr. Haultain here to-day can only bring discredit on our country, and on the Hon. member for MacLeod will rest all the odium of seeking to place the Assembly in so humiliating a position.

RAILWAY SEQUELS.

The last spike has been driven, but it seems the last word has not been spoken and our local contemporary, eager to justify its party bias does not let the occasion pass without a fling at the premier and a side stroke; at our member, Mr. Macdowall. In its issue of the 30th ult. it heads a leading article on our railway with the query "To whom?" and ends it with something like a mild, liturgical malediction on Sir John Macdonald and the Conservative party. However, the Saskatchewan is not true to itself throughout. It comes on like a lion, as did Bottom the Weaver, and yet "roars you as gently as a sucking dove". Nor is it unlike him of the olden time who saddled his ass and started out to curse the chosen people, but somehow or other was constrained to bless them. The Saskatchewan is not happy, and there is no wonder. It sees and is forced, in effect, to admit the undoubted success of the railway policy of the present government and yet, true to its own instincts, it sets itself, in the very smallest spirit of political spite, to minimize the credit due to Sir John for his share in the inception and carrying out of that very policy. Times change and we change with them. It is not so very long since the whole Liberal press of the country was a unit in casting obloquy on Sir John in connection with the C. P. R. scheme. Everything was bad about it, and he was held responsible for it. Sir John had virtually sold the Dominion to a grinding monopoly. The scheme was chimerical and could never succeed. The Cabinet was under the thumb of the C. P. R., and so on. Now, according to the Saskatchewan, it is all right. Neither the Intercolonial nor the C. P. R. scheme was bad or blameworthy. These schemes were not only desirable but indispensable. "The existence of confederation involved, as an essential element, a transcontinental railway." So says the Saskatchewan, and we are glad to find it admitting so much. But then, Sir John does not deserve any credit for this scheme, for he had little to do with it! This is a new reading of history certainly. It seems the idea was originated, or as the Saskatchewan puts it, was "conceived by the fathers of confederation in general" and Sir John was only one of them. This version of the genesis of the C. P. R. is not clear, but we are free to infer that in the process of conception or incubation, the Canadian hen was not required, as a company of patriarchal roosters did all the sitting on this monotonous question. Again Sir John, according to the Saskatchewan, "managed by skilful political leadership to place himself at the head of the government, and, therefore he had the honor of seeing the C. P. R. completed during his administration". It is admitted there were some physical and financial difficulties—but the engineers smoothed away the physical difficulties and the financial arrangements were easily arranged. Sir John "happened to be the first minister," it is true, but that was "a comparatively insignificant circumstance" and it is to the Canadian people themselves that we are to ascribe the building of the transcontinental railways.

We are surprised a newspaper of any pretensions should serve up such rubbishy pabulum to its readers. Does the Saskatchewan imagine for a moment there is a single individual whom its columns may reach who has not formed a juster estimate of the place, the powers and the responsibilities of the Executive Government of this country than its hollow sophistry here sets before him? We suspect had the Liberal party been at the helm of state when these great works were completed, the Saskatchewan, instead of depreciating would have magnified their office and would now be singing paeans of praise to the honor and glory of the leaders who had achieved such mighty results. But circumstances alter cases, and Sir John must have no credit given him. And why? Simply because he is the leader of the Conservative party and Prime Minister of Canada. We fear our contemporary's judgement has been fatally warped by contact with the party of disorder, the party whose individual members all wish to be chiefs, who never consider that subordination is as necessary as freedom for a party that would be successful and who, with a strange perversity, suffer themselves to be hustled along to constant and certain defeat, by half-a-dozen sub-leutenants, rather than submit to the guidance of one competent general, if they had such. The Saskatchewan says Sir John "placed himself at the head of the Government". That is a curious assertion, but what is the truth and what becomes of the sovereign people in this connection? Sir John is not despotic and neither did nor could "place himself" at the head of the Government. Why, it was that selfsame Canadian people, to whom alone the Saskatchewan accords the credit for our great railways, that placed Sir John in power. It is the same people that has time and again renewed its mandate to the same statesman to direct its destinies—and the verdict of that people and of the world to-day is, and the verdict of history will be, that Sir John Macdonald has nobly done his duty to his country and has never once betrayed the trust reposed in him.

But, says the Saskatchewan, although we withhold all the credit from Sir John, we give him all the blame. Although he had so little to do with the scheme that his connection with it was purely accidental and the fact that he was prime Minister at the time, "a comparatively insignificant circumstance," still it is to him "we owe ten years of non-progressive isolation" a rebellion with its heavy cost in life and treasure, and the rest of our drawbacks, real and imaginary. Perhaps this is scarcely reasonable or fair or honest, but it is the Saskatchewan's idea of justice apparently. It is easy to speculate on what might have been if Alexander Mackenzie's route had been adhered to—and since the Saskatchewan desires to soar into the regions of fancy, we see no harm in its solacing itself with the idea that something might have happened that never materialized. We too have an opinion on the subject and that is, had Mr. Mackenzie's party been in power, Prince Albert would have had no railway this side of the millennium. The magnificent water stretches would have remained, and perhaps we might have had other reminders of spasmodic and fertile efforts in the shape of rusty rails and rotting ties here and there, and that would have been the most of it we daresay. But, surmises apart, what possible comparison is there between Mr. Mackenzie's projects and Sir John's performances. In the one case we have a modicum of those good intentions which are said to pave a place that shall here be nameless; in the other we have a completed, a monumental work that is fast becoming one of the world's greatest highways. As to our own isolation heretofore—we have all regretted it and we have now got over it (thanks to those to whom thanks are due); but surely the Saskatchewan does not expect anybody to believe Sir John changed the C.P.R. route to injure our district. To insinuate anything of that sort is as unfair as it is absurd, and it will never go down with an intelligent people who love truth and justice and fair play. Besides, when our contemporary says the Saskatchewan district has been "non-progressive" for ten years, he ought to have discriminated and not made a sweeping statement that is bound to mislead. So far as applicable to Prince Albert settlement, the assertion is not according to fact. Prince Albert has progressed steadily, if slowly, and has thereby well proved its vitality, its power of self-support and the extent of its natural resources. This indeed is the very best proof we can offer to strangers of the great intrinsic value of our district as a field for immigration, and it was unbecomingly and unpatriotic in the last degree to send abroad such reckless and misleading statements. As the Saskatchewan was not in existence when the rebellion occurred, it is perhaps not surprising to find it so far astray from the truth as it is in imputing the origin of that lamentable episode in our country's history to Sir John because the C.P.R. road was changed. We can assure the Saskatchewan the rebellion had a very different origin indeed. We do not mean to locate the responsibility, but every one here knows that those who were, most unfortunately, drawn into active participation in that affair and were the ostensible rebels, never wavered a railway at any time. However so far as this subject of rebellion is concerned, we counsel our contemporary to "let well alone". We do not question its courage in bringing the matter up, but we think unavailingly little of its discretion.

In answering to its own satisfaction the question "to whom" the credit for our own railway is due, the Saskatchewan having brushed Sir John's claims aside, of course ignores the part performed in the matter by Mr. Macdowall. For all that, however, it is perfectly well known that our member was instant in season and out of season and never once relaxed his efforts till success was assured and the railway an accomplished fact. We are not aware Mr. Macdowall claims any particular credit for his services in this connection. He recognized it as his plain duty to do the best he could for his constituents and the country. He did his best and he did it well, and if he has refrained from "blowing his own horn," we think his reticence, in this respect, is as worthy of commendation as his conduct all through has been, and we are fully assured the constituency will agree with us.

In this week's issue we publish a fairly full report of the speech delivered by Mr. Betts on Mr. Scott's Insurance Bill for the protection of the widows and orphans. That so important a Bill should have received such scant courtesy from the majority will undoubtedly excite some considerable discussion among the electors. Mr. Betts took the only stand any member under our system should have taken. His speech and the action of the majority will be interesting reading for those cranks who howl for responsible government for the Territories, with but one Legislature.

It should be a matter of satisfaction to every elector of this district to know that we have in the Local Legislature one member who is carefully looking after the future of Prince Albert. Mr. Plaxton will be expected to explain to the people who came to the front and secured his election, the strange action he has taken during the present session. He was among those who urged upon the present Council the importance of resuming office, and is one of the first to vote that they must thereby forfeit their positions in the House. Major Hecy stands solid by the position he assumed last year. Dr. Brett has satisfied the House that he thoroughly realizes the importance of the position, and will fight that the interests of the whole, and not a part, of the Territories must be looked after.

THE WESTERN WORLD, the illustrated monthly magazine published at Winnipeg by Aaron Burrows, is steadily improving. This month's number contains as special features a description of the Macleod district, including Lethbridge, illustrated with sixteen illustrations of picturesque scenery, the colliery works, &c. There are also illustrated descriptions of Brandon and Moose Jaw and a considerable amount of miscellaneous matter dealing with the resources and development of the whole of the territory between Lake Superior and the Pacific Coast. The Magazine is performing very important work in advertising the resources of the great west.

REPLY

To His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor's Speech.

We, the Members of the first Legislative Assembly, sitting at its first Session, thank Your Honor for Your Honor's gracious Speech.

There are many things referred to by Your Honor on which the country is this year to be greatly congratulated. The abundant harvest, the success of the ranching industry, the lines of railroad which during the year have either been completed or are in course of construction, the opening of new markets, the extension of trade, and increased general prosperity of the Territories are all matters for sincere congratulation.

Your Honor mentions the steps which have been taken to forward immigration into the country, a subject of vital importance and deserves our cooperation in maintaining and completing the same, a cooperation which has been and always will be given, although we regret to say our means are of the smallest. Your Honor will doubtless remember the early appeals we have made to the Dominion Government for assistance in the work of populating the many millions acres of the Dominion lands in this country and the cold response with which they have been met. The brief and hurried visit of the English delegates to the Northwest has been as yet the only visible result.

Statistics showing that crime has not increased in this country will be gladly received. Proposals made by individual members in the five Judicial Districts of the country show that not only are the Territories singularly free from crime but that in spite of the increase of population, the number of crimes is a less percentage of criminal cases than ever before.

The greater part has been suitably diminished in some districts by the absence of settlement, but in others the same advantages have not worked as well. It will be our duty to make further room for settlement in your honor during the session.

Attention to our Library were much needed; we regret, however, to say that some law of the books recently purchased cannot command the interest of the Assembly as usually found in a Legislative Library of the proportion which our means necessarily be.

The Legislative joins with your Honor in thanks to the President of the Canadian Pacific Railway for immigration passes.

The School system of the Territories shows rapid development and your honor's statistics on the subject will doubtless prove interesting to the country.

We are glad that your honor has reported last year's method of distributing grants for roads and bridges, namely, by an equal division among the Members.

The circumstances of the country and of the Assembly oblige us from year to year to make representations to the Federal Government on various matters.

The Assembly regrets that your honor has not seen fit to attend to the circumstances which have led to your honor's selection and retention in office of an Advisory Council not in accord with, nor possessing the confidence of, the majority of this Assembly. It appears to us to be necessary to the good government of the country, that the measure of control, if any, possessed by the Legislature over the acts of the Executive should be clearly defined. Having been left without the guidance of your honor in this matter, the Assembly can do no less than assume its rights to be such as the Northwest Territories Acts and constitutional usage having the force of law appear to give. They are therefore compelled to believe in the right of the majority not only to pass legislation, but to advise and control in the matter of its being given effect—that the Northwest Territories Acts, interpreted in the light of constitutional usage, provide for control of the executive by an Advisory Council having the confidence of a majority of the House; that the assumption of such control by any Members of this House not possessing its confidence is a violation of the spirit and intent of the Northwest Territories Acts, and an infringement upon the rights of the House against which it feels compelled to enter its most solemn protest, and to take such measures to protect itself as best it may.

The disregard for the violation of all constitutional rules, the infringement upon the rights and privilege of the House and usurpation of its prerogatives by its Members composing the Advisory Council, in our opinion renders those Members unworthy of taking any part in the business of the Assembly. As the only means in our power of vindicating our case the common rights of majorities in representative assemblies, it is our duty to refuse all legislation and motions offered by these Members.

It is provided by the Act creating this Assembly that no motion regarding Finance may be adopted by the House except it first be recommended by message from your honor. This provision places the power of initiating financial legislation solely in the hands of your honor's Advisers, while the power to pass such legislation unquestionably rests with the majority of the House. If your Advisers, in the present case, possessed the confidence of the House, their right to initiate financial legislation would be unquestioned. But not possessing that confidence, their right to initiate such legislation is doubtful. The House feels that it would be doing less than its duty if it did not assert on its unquestionable right in the matter, and as long as your honor chooses to refuse the advice of the majority of its Members on questions of finance, so long will your honor's Advisers be refused leave to introduce motions on questions of finance in the House. It must be apparent to Your Honor that, as a matter of expediency merely, it is altogether undesirable from the point of view of the public interest that financial legislation should be introduced by a minority—necessary to give it effect. It must be apparent that the introduction of such legislation under such circumstances cannot only lead to unnecessary and disagreeable disputes and delays. If Your Honor's Advisers were permitted to introduce financial motions at their pleasure, while they have not the power to carry them, serious delays upon time and introduce amendments which would create further delays, a waste of action would be passed in their hands which the House has reason to believe would be used to delay the Public Business and to vent regard to the welfare of the people of these Territories. As the only possible efficient means of protecting itself in this regard, the House claims the right to refuse leave to the several members of Your Honor's present Advisory Council to introduce any motion in this House.

At the same time it will be the care of the majority to secure beneficial legislation to be introduced or passed, thereby because those members cannot be allowed to introduce it.

It must be clear to Your Honor that this Assembly can legislate on but few of the subjects upon which it is expressly authorized by Dominion order in Council without the question of finance being involved. This is particularly the case in regard to Schools. If the funds upon which the successful working of this most important Ordinance depends are entirely beyond our control, it would in our opinion be better to place the power to legislate regarding Northwest Schools in the hands of those who do control the necessary funds, whether they be Your Honor alone, or Your Honor with your Advisers, or the Parliament of Canada. This Assembly must protest against its being placed in the position of being responsible to the people of the North West Territories for proper legislation regarding Schools, and yet be deprived of the control of the funds whereby alone that legislation can be given effect whereby alone the School system at present existing in the North-West Territories can be maintained. At the session of 1888, the Assembly, believing that it possessed control of the grant in aid of Schools, provided that a certain proportion of aid from that grant should be extended to them. On the strength of the inducement thus held out, many new districts were organized, taxation was levied and liabilities were incurred for the erection of school houses whose usefulness depended on the continuance of the proportion of the aid promised in the Ordinance of the Assembly. During the Session of 1889 the promise of aid remained without any intimation from Your Honor that it would not be made good, and a still further increase in the number of School Districts took place. In the present year, after the annual taxation rate has been struck on the basis of the grant promised by the Northwest Assembly, a circular authorized by the Government of the Northwest Territories was received by the several School Districts warning them of a proposed reduction to be made in the amount of their grant.

This House is compelled to inform Your Honor that if it is to understand that the control of the School funds rests with Your Honor and not with this Assembly, as would appear from the circular referred to, it will be necessary for us to amend the present Ordinance by striking out the provisions relating to aid to Schools and thereby make known that upon Your Honor rests the responsibility of the distribution of the said fund and the support of the School system of the North West Territories.

The House very deeply regrets the extraordinary circumstances which compelled it to take this stand in defence of its rights and dignity, and the rights and dignity of those whom it represents, but feels compelled to inform Your Honor thus clearly as to what its position is and as to the course which it intends to pursue, believing that as Your Honor's Advisers do not represent the majority of this House, they cannot properly represent to Your Honor the position which House has taken, its reasons for taking that position, and its intention to maintain it.

Mr. Tweed moved, seconded by Mr. Neil, the adoption of the reply to the House's speech.

Mr. Deits was the first speaker to reply and in a speech lasting about an hour dealt most exhaustively with the subject before the House.

Officer, of Edmonton, who followed, handled the subject taken by previous speaker, but did not advance any reasons for his attitude. He succeeded in convincing both the public and the members of the House that Prince Albert had sent one man alone to cope with the difficulties which beset the Legislature.

Mr. Scott, who followed the member for Edmonton, spoke very strongly and moved, seconded by Mr. Davidson, the following amendment: "That the House do immediately resolve itself into a committee of the whole to consider the address."

Mr. T. B. Clark spoke briefly from point of expediency, but Mr. Davidson followed and in a considerable language opened up the whole question anew.

David, of Brandon, representing Saint District, was the only speaker who questioned any of the acts of the Advisory Council.

Second's amendment was lost on division. Mr. Patton, who had voted once for and once against any of the Advisory Council being on committees, voted against this amendment.

N. J. in speaking, returned to original questions and was frequently called to order while endeavoring to draw a comparison between the former Lieutenant Governor and the present one.

Mr. Mitchell, of Banquo, takes no active part in the questions as they arise, always voting however with the majority.

Gayley made a fair speech from his point of viewable connecting each section of his speech. He sketched the strong position of his Honor's advisers, but claimed as usual that they had lowered the standard of the House by occupying a position contrary to wishes of the majority.

Mr. Brett clearly showed in a most able manner the legality and consistency of the course of action pursued by the advisory board, of which he is the acknowledged leader. He reviewed the history of the first constitution of the Assembly and the several previous councils and closed one of the best speeches ever delivered in the Assembly amid cheers from every part of the House.

Mr. Haultain, although usually one of the best speakers of the Assembly, was not up to his usual form and failed in his efforts to destroy the effects produced by Dr. Brett's powerful speech.

Mr. Jelly made a strong attack on the previous speaker, Mr. Haultain, his old power, lasting the actions of the present Advisory Board and closed his remarks at 3 a.m.

Mr. Sutherland spoke for a few moments, but in such a way as to bring forth the cry of "point of order" from both sides of the House.

A clever speech from Mr. Davidson was followed by one from the mover of the adoption motion, Mr. Tweed, and the debate was closed at 3:50 a.m.

The current number of the Canadian Grocer and General Storekeeper, Toronto and Montreal, contains 52 pages important information for business men. Its market reports are its great feature—they have been accepted as official in the courts. It is noted for its short, spicy articles, which aim to keep its readers abreast of the times. The American Grocer says it is "the brightest and liveliest trade journal in Canada." It makes its advertising columns of unusual interest; in them are to be found announcements leading wholesalers and manufacturers. It costs 2 cents per week, and he is a poor retailer who cannot get that much out of it. Subscribers send for a sample.

Rubbers, overshoes, mitts, gloves and moccasins are being sold very cheap at F. C. Baker's.

The circular issued October 1st, announcing a Sunday School Convention to be held at Regina Wednesday and Thursday, November 26th and 27th, 1890, has met with a very hearty response. Arrangements have been made with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, by which delegates attending the Convention can secure return tickets at one third fare, by having C. P. R. Agent at the station from which they start sign a certificate—extra copies of which will be forwarded on application. Free entertainment will be provided all delegates during the Convention. Delegates upon their arrival at Regina will find the Reception Committee in the waiting room at the C. P. R. station, from whom they will receive tickets and full information. Rev. Alex. Grant, pastor of the Baptist Church, Winnipeg, an enthusiastic Bible student, and an eloquent speaker, will be present by special arrangement, and will address the Convention on "The Preparation of the Lesson," conduct the "Question Drawer," and assist in the discussion. The programme will include a 30 cent student's hour, "Secretary's Half Hour," Librarian's Half Hour, and a grand number of practical topics, introduced by prominent Sunday School workers. To all schools that have not yet reported, a second statistical blank is enclosed, with the request that it be filled in and returned at once. Schools of all denominations whether sending delegates or not, are urgently requested to report, and thus assist in the preparation of the first table of S. S. statistics for the Northwest Territories.
